THE RECENT LICENSE DECISION.

The full text of the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the San Francisco license case is at hand. The opinion by Mr. Justice Field, and in which the full bench concurs, substantially holds as was set out in the RECORD-UNION some ten days ago.

The decision of the Court is, in brief, that communities in California may make and enforce within their limits local, police and sanitary regulations, not in conflict with general laws, and that committing to a police or other local Commission the discretionary power to refuse to grant a license to carry on a business that is the proper subject of regulation, is within the police powers of a city or town.

But the most interesting portion of the opinion is that in which the Court takes occasion to remove what it says is an erroneous impression that obtains—that is, that the selling of liquor is specifically aimed at license regulation; that there is something wrong in principle and objectionable when restrictions or regulations imposed upon other businesses are applied to the selling of liquors by retail. The Court says at this point, and dwells upon it with emphasis:

fornia, and there is no bill of the dozen or more we have examined, that comes so near to the desired method, as that which has been proposed by a San Francisco Committee of the Federal Trade, and by the Young Men's Democratic League. Under such a bill all ballots will be printed by the State or county or district. They will contain the names of all candidates, and the voter will indicate his preference by a mark opposite to the name. It might be better to require the officers to arrange the names according to party nominations, but in most other respects the bill appears to be faultless.

That portion of it which provides for entering upon the list of candidates all who file a certain number of indorsements or have secured a certain per cent. of votes at a prior election, will probably cause the only serious divergence of opinions, and upon that branch of the reform ballot question the debate is an open one and involves considerations which we will take up later at day.

But so far as the uniform, officially printed ballot, the voting booth, and the ballot stubs are concerned, it certainly is a superior measure to any yet discussed in any of the States. It is a better bill than that now operative in New York, because there is no post rider and no permission to partake in printing ballots after the official model. It is a better bill than that which became the law in Massachusetts last year, because it is provided that the ballots shall be issued with stubs from which they shall be torn. The stub bears a number corresponding to the number of the ballot and that set opposite the voter's name on the poll list when he receives his ballot. On returning from the preparation booth the inspector, after identifying the ballot by the number on the outside, thus insuring the exclusion of a fraudulent or counterfeit ballot, tears off the number and the voter casts his ballot absolutely free from any means of identification.

The poll-list cannot be "stuffed" as under the present law, for the numbers opposite the names of voters and the numbers on the stubs must aggregate the same amount and agree with the whole number of ballots in the box. The official who issues the bound book of ballots to the Election Board must receive back ballots and stubs to make a perfect balance, and with the total as stated the poll-list must agree. Thus the only possible fraud is to stuff the ballot-box that in which clerks, judges, inspector and ballot clerk unite, and to accomplish which the whole board must coincide.

MUNICIPAL POLITICS.

In a recent campaign address in New York Professor Felix Adler confined himself to the consideration of municipal reforms. In the course of his remarks he declared that the cultivation of proper civic pride is the only true solution of municipal difficulties. This is the keynote of all reform in our cities, and Adler has hit upon it squarely. With the Greeks the well-being of the town was deemed as great, if not of greater, importance than any other. It at least came second to that of the well-being of the State and had precedence even of the claims of family. As Adler put it, the boast of any community that is progressive must spring from pride in public vitality in the town.

It is the right of every citizen to pursue any lawful trade or business under such restrictions as are imposed upon all persons of the same age, sex, color, etc., but which are reasonable conditions as may be deemed by the government of the town, peace, good order and morals of the community. Even liberty itself, the greatest of all rights, is not absolute, but is to act according to one's own will. It is only freedom from restraint under conditions essential to the welfare of society, rightly others. It is then regulated by law. That right to acquire, enjoy, and dispose of property is decided by the State, and the Duke of Luxemburg, the King of Holland, was born August 31, 1889, was declared next heir to his father, the King of Luxembourg. On April 1, 1889, he succeeded also to the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg. The throne was hereditary in male line, and the King died childless. On April 29, 1889, the Queen had so much recovered his mortal powers that he resumed his rule. About 11 o'clock in the evening of April 29, 1889, the Duke withdrew and returned to Germany. Duke Adolph was born July 24, 1871, and represents the Duke of Luxemburg. The Princess Wilhelmina will succeed to the throne of Holland. She is nearly 11 years old and will probably be Queen before she reaches the age of the Queen until she attains legal age and undergoes revision of the Constitution regarding the royal succession.—EWS. PARS, November 23d.—A letter concerning the travels of Prince Henry of Orleans and M. Bonvalot, in Central Asia, during the past year, says: The travelers made their way on the vast plateaus of Tibet, across the mountains, through miles of desert, at an altitude varying from 10,000 to 15,000 feet, and reached the south of Lake Teori-Mor, after many days' journey on horseback from Lhasa. They made their way eastward by a new route, and it is believed that they will succeed to the throne of Lhasa. They are nearly 11 years old and will probably be Queen before she reaches the age of the Queen until she attains legal age and undergoes revision of the Constitution regarding the royal succession.—EWS. WHOSE IS IT?

THE BASEBALL PENNANT APPARENTLY WITHOUT AN OWNER.

San Francisco and Sacramento appear to be tied—A claim that San Francisco must lose one game.

Is it a tie or have the Sacramento won the California League pennant?

This is the all-absorbing topic in baseball circles. The season closed with yesterday's games, and according to the table as kept by the Record-Union and published after every game played during the year, the San Franciscos and Sacramento are tied for first place. The table shows just how many games each club has played with the others, and it is now claimed by the Sacramento that the San Franciscos have played one more game with Stockton than the schedule called for. With this contest thrown out the Sacramento are entitled to the pennant.

This little matter might not have been discovered had not Armstrong, the Captain of the Stocktons, remarked the other day that he thought his club had played one game too many with the San Francisco. The table shows that the Bay Club has played in forty-six contests with the Stocktons, and the schedule of games as kept by Albert Engelstein, the Secretary of the Sacramento club, shows that only forty-five games were arranged by the directors to be played between the two clubs. It is evident from Stockton that the question that remains to be decided is, Who has the correct schedule as made up by the managers at their conference before the season opened?

It may be that the whole affair has been muddled so badly that it will be impossible to reach a satisfactory understanding, and in such an event the proper and only alternative would be to let the San Franciscos and San Francisco play off a deciding game to determine which of the two teams is entitled to the honor of holding the pennant.

It is more than probable that this course will be taken, because, after having committed so bad a blunder, the Stockton men will be liable to make another. Mr. Funn will claim that he has followed the schedule as given him, and, to avoid a wrangle, a deciding game, or, may be, a series of two in three—will be played between the two leading clubs. The reason why we cannot be sure is that the Colonels did not cause the club to play indifferent ball. The schedule called for a finish of four games between Oakland and San Francisco, and the Sacramento Club was in such a position that it was impossible for them to win unless the Colonels defeated the San Franciscos in every game excepting one.

The Oaklands could have easily kept the pennant at the Bay, but they knew their team was not stake to win every game or to win on their part was to blunder the name of the team before the public. They started to try to win every game, and as the later team was exceedingly weak in every other point of the game, the Colonels experienced no trouble in winning the score at the end being 15 to 10.

The reason why we cannot be sure is that the Colonels did not cause the club to play indifferent ball.

UNION BAPTIST SERVICES.

First of Mrs. Baeyertz's Series of Revival Meetings.

Last evening at the First Baptist Church on Ninth street was started the first of a series of union revival meetings conducted by Mrs. Baeyertz, the celebrated Jewish evangelist of Australia.

Mrs. Baeyertz is a possessing woman in the prime of life and is an eloquent speaker, and impresses everyone with her earnestness. She has just closed a series of services in San Francisco, where so many attended that tickets of admission had to be issued.

Last night about 500 people assembled to hear her.

She comes from the third chapter of St. John, and her theme was "The Unpardoned Sin."

She said that the words of Jesus, addressed to the public, "If you sin, bring it to me," were meant for everyone, to whatever station in life, and that they were imperative and binding upon all.

Birth means life. Our natural birth gave to us the likeness and qualities of our parents; the sacred birth was not a natural birth, but a spiritual one, making us like God. The author of this new birth is the Holy Ghost.

Regarding the so-called unpardonable sin, she said it was not mentioned in the New Testament, but in the Epistles. Birth means life, and the birth of Christ is a sun rising through the Bible and brought out plainly a very great many times—but that no Christian can commit it. It is one that once committed can never be committed. Said she: "First, What is the birth? Second—How can it be discerned? Third—Why cannot it be forgiven?"

The lady explained that the sin was simply a sin so close to the Holy Spirit until He could not bear it. Those who have committed a sin that is close to the Holy Spirit until He could not bear it.

The lady explained that the sin was simply a sin so close to the Holy Spirit until He could not bear it. Those who have committed a sin that is close to the Holy Spirit until He could not bear it.

She said that the sin was a sin running through the Bible and brought out plainly a very great many times—but that no Christian can commit it. It is one that once committed can never be committed. Said she: "First,

ALL AROUND THE WORLD.

Don von Stephan, Secretary of State for Posts and Telegraphs in Germany, is coming to this country to study our postal and telegraphic systems.

During the last twenty-four years, 2,400 bulls and 1,700 horses have been killed in the bull fights in the City of Mexico. But the two bull fighters have been killed in the same time.

A law has been promulgated at Hardanger, in Norway, to the effect that no girl shall be eligible for the marriage state until she is proficient in spinning, knitting and baking.

Recent flower shows have indicated a return of the old-fashioned double dahlia to popularity. With all its prim stiffness it is now gay and varied in color and admirably adapted to decorative purposes.

Even with the Bagg Family.

"Now madam," said the attorney for the defendant to a little, wily, black-eyed, girl, "will you be compelled to give up your son?"

"We'll want to know what you think, madam. Please say 'yes' or 'no' to my question."

"Do you know Mr. Joshua Bagg?"

"I don't know him, though? Well, I smile you." Ask him, if he knows me, anything bout tryin' to cheat a pore wider like me out o' a two-year-old steer. Ask him, if he's elden the slender prison house of his quondam enemies with a grin smile and paid the five shillings.

"Tell me," said he, adding, partid with his money, "why don't you kill the beasts? Why do you take them away alive?"

"I sell 'em to t' dog fighters, I do. There's night on a hundred o' em, and they brings me tuppence a piece," the man replied.

Holson scratched his gray poll. He had ever been cheated. "Ah," he said, "that ain't fair. I can't let you take 'em away without giving me a share." "That be hanged for a feather," the man retorted; "it rats is mine!" "Oh, no," he insisted, "they are my rats; they were caught on my premises, and I want my share of them until it was burned down."

Mrs. Owen Connally, widow of a wealthy English-American, has just given her splendid residence in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Canada, to the Sisters of Charity, to be used as a boarding-house for women.

The book descriptive of their three years' residence in India which the Duke and Duchess of Connaught are at present engaged upon is to be published in German as well as English.

MARY WHOLEY.

Liberties of our Daughters.

"There is no one thing more delicate to decide upon than that of the correspondence of a young girl. Certainly, the letters of a school girl should, in sheer justice to her, be subject to examination and revision. What can be more painful in after life to a sensitive woman, when the morning roseate tints of illusions have vanished, than the record preserved by some ill-natured person of her indiscreet letters, which, after all, were but the out-cropping of meaningless exuberance, yet, alas! liable to grave misconstruction."
